HIV Early Intervention Services

In SFY 2006, DASA Providers (37) provided 16,061 tests to patients in substance abuse treatment. This activity was supported by 22,325 hours for initial early intervention test-decision and 4,813 hours for second visit test-decision (those patients emotionally inappropriate or undecided on first visit). Post-test counseling and case management equaled 17, 312 hours. DASA sites work directly with high-risk clients due to their substance misuse or abuse behavior or that of their partners. These clients are carefully counseled about risk behaviors and when emotionally stable are tested for HIV. This past year we continued to track initial test counseling hours, second visit test-decision counseling and post-test counseling as direct services and community intervention, case management, phlebotomy tracking and HIV training hours as indirect hours of each agency. The ratio of direct services to indirect services is 2.4/1 or 70.6% direct one-on-one with the client. Risk reduction counseling is a very important part of recovery supports as well as a public health issue.
